WHY PHOENIX?

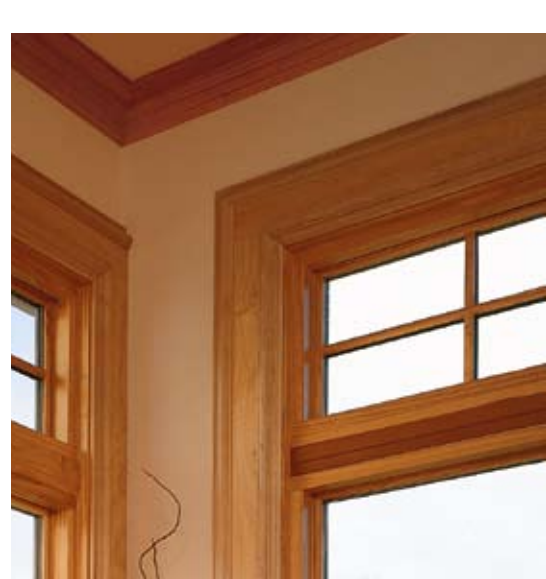

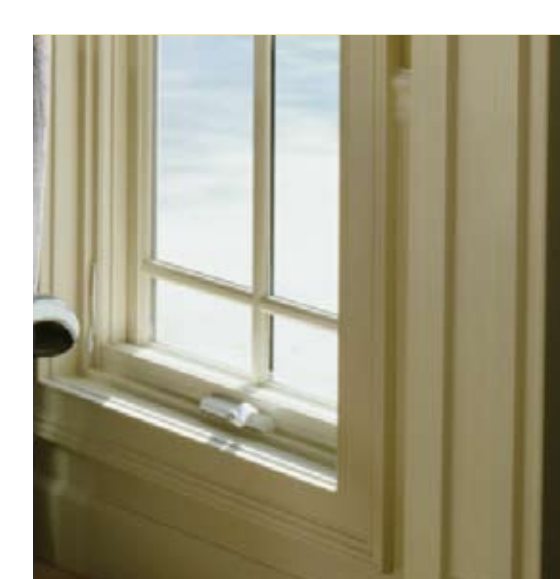

Before our name goes on, be assured that Paramount's Phoenix series of windows and doors have met or surpassed all independent tests for industry standards. Performance measures include air and water infiltration, structural integrity, strength and durability and energy efficiency. This means you are assured of lasting comfort—to stay warm in frigid weather, dry during the driving rain and cool in the heat of summer.

PHOENIX

The Phoenix Series of windows is fabricated using MikronWood frame technology. Independent tests prove that it is a better thermal insulator than wood, fiberglass, rigid PVC and aluminum.

Therefore, You will be enjoying the best energy performance of any frame material.

ENGINEERED COMPOSITE
 Phoenix Series Windows are made from an exclusive engineered material called MikronWood™.

- It combines the strength of thermoplastic resins to create a super tough, solid-core material
- It is extremely durable and efficient to withstand the extremes of all type of environmental conditions
- It will not rot or decay
- It's insect proof because it can't absorb moisture

SUPERCAP™ SURFACE TECHNOLOGY
 It's a process that actually creates a fused, built-in permanent color surface that is extremely durable, weatherable and color fade-resistant.

TESTED TOUGH
 Before our name goes on, you know that the composite frame material is proven for high performance and strength. It has surpassed industry-standard tests for heat resistance, color fade and dimensional strength. It is manufactured to resist the harshest Canadian Prairie rain, wind, moisture and direct sunlight.

MORE ENERGY EFFICIENT
 With a unique solid-core Phoenix composite material has excellent insulating properties.

- 23% lower heat-transfer values than pine wood
- 37% lower than hollow vinyl
- 54% lower than fiberglass
